Console Jockey Files for Bankruptcy

Self-proclaimed Media Giant goes belly up.

AUSTIN, TX - March 10, 2002 - Console Jockey, Inc., the "fun-while-it lasted" company filed for Chapter 13 today due to unforeseen shortcomings in the gullibility of the general populus. The Corporation had a fantastic lifespan of an hour and a half.

Closing statements by the executive team were as follows:

Seriously though, we'd like to thank all the SXSW staff who put this event together, our two wonderful commentators, and our noble opponents. We had a blast. Most importantly, we'd like to thank all the people who really invented all the things we took credit for and even more things we take for granted now. None of this would be possible without you.

More information regarding Console Jockey, Inc. will be available on its website, www.consolejockey.com for some time but we're thinking of selling the domain name to some dude who wants to make it a geek news forum or something. Thank you for your time. We appreciate your business.
